Almost all techniques of preservation are designed to extend the life of food. Among the most primitive forms of food preservation are such methods as drying, canning, and freezing. Drying (dehydrating) food is one of the oldest and easiest methods of food preservation. Vegetable dehydrating is an easy way to store vegetables for long term use.